"The Vision"

A beautiful eagle soared majestically in the high heavens. Oh how regal, bold, and free flying in the sunshine of God's love! He was soaring above the predator line, and he was safe from all enemies. But suddenly, the vision changed. Now the eagle was lying on the ground, wounded! He was bleeding profusely. His muscular side was shredded, apparently by some sort of wild beast, and was oozing out his very life substance. The strong wings, which once carried him above the storms of life, now lay quivering and trembling in weakness and pain. Terribly frightened, the fragile and vulnerable eagle was in a dying position.

But again the vision changed abruptly. A masculine figure appeared on the scene, a tall tanned valiant man, with flowing brown hair, a bronzed, bearded, yet gentle face, with eyes that dance with love. He was wearing a robe whiter than the snow, with a lightning-like brightness about His countenance. Moved with compassion, He reached down and swooped up the wounded eagle like it was His very own child. He placed it on His strong shoulders, and began the ascent, to carry the dying creature up a steep mountain.

He said: "When eagles need healing, they get themselves up to the top of a high mountain, and lay themselves out in the rays of the sun. Because they are wounded, they cannot feed themselves, so other eagles will drop them meat until they are strong again. But this eagle cannot get himself up, so I will carry this eagle to the top of the mountain."

For the third time, the vision changed. The Lord Jesus Christ laid the bleeding eagle out on the rocky surface of the peak of the mountain. Then He ascended.....He rose up in the air until He was hovering over the eagle. He spoke very tenderly: " Not only the natural rays of the sun, but the rays of the Divine Virtue Of the Son of God will I heal this eagle. Not only will other eagles drop meat to this wounded one, but I, the God of all compassion, will drop this wounded eagle the Meat of My Word. And this eagle shall heal completely, and fly again. He shall fly high and freer than eve before."

The Lord continued to speak: "Go gather my wounded eagles, and provide For them a save haven in which to heal and become strong again. You must teach them how to live in the high places of victorious Christina living, and teach them the abundant life of Christ. You must feed them the riches of the treasures of My Word. You must show them My love and My will for their lives. I will cause them to become overcomers, and they shall never again know defeat nor failure, for the wounded eagles shall fly again. (See Isaiah 40: 28-31)
